

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Chapter 1 Introduction: A Theoretical and Thematic Framework	1
Chapter 2 In the Spirit of Erzulie: Vodou and the Reimagining of Haitian Womanhood in Edwidge Danticat’s Breath, Eyes, Memory	37
Chapter 3 “Thunder, Perfect Mind”: Candomblé, Gnosticism, and the Utopian Impulse in Toni Morrison’s Paradise	71
Chapter 4 Conjuring History: The Meaning of Witchcraft in Maryse Condé’s I, Tituba, Black Witch of Salem	103
Chapter 5 Conclusion: The Return of Witches, Goddesses, and Angry Spirits	153
Bibliography	159
Index	167