

C O N T E N T S

---

List of Illustrations	ix
Key to Titles	x
Acknowledgments	xii
INTRODUCTION	Virginia Woolf, Jane Ellen Harrison, and the Spirit of Modernist Classicism: A Transpersonal Modernism	i
CHAPTER 1	Of the Nymph and the Noun: Jane Harrison, Janet Case, and Virginia Woolf's Greek Education—From Mentorship to Transpersonal Desire	38
CHAPTER 2	The Making and Re-Making of a God(dess): Re-writing Modernism's War Story—Feminist Ritual Structures as Transpersonal Plots	62
CHAPTER 3	Reading Transpersonally I—"Next Comes the Wife's Room . . .": A Room of One's Own and "Scientiae Sacra Fames"	115
CHAPTER 4	Reading Transpersonally II—Women Building Peace: Three Guineas and "Epilogue on the War: Peace with Patriotism"	134

CHAPTER 5	To Russia with Love: Literature, Language, and a Shared Ideology of the Political Left	153
AFTERWORD	Modernism's Transpersonal and : Re-connecting Women's Lives/Women's Work and the Politics of Recovering a Reputation	168
	Bibliography	177
	Index	186