

 CONTENTS

	Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	The Emergence of Invention	1
Chapter 1	“Gooth yet alway under”: Invention as Movement in the House of Fame	36
Chapter 2	“Ryght swich as ye felten”: Aligning Affect and Invention in The Legend of Good Women	69
Chapter 3	A Thing So Strange: Macrocosmic Emergence in the Confessio Amantis	93
Chapter 4	“The Cronique of this fable”: Transformative Poetry and the Chronicle Form in the Confessio Amantis	122
Chapter 5	Empty Songs, Mighty Men, and a Startled Chicken: Satirizing the Affect of Invention in Fragment VII of the Canterbury Tales	151
Conclusion	From Ashes Ancient Come: Affective Intertextuality in Chaucer, Gower, and Shakespeare	191
	Bibliography	213
	Index	227