

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
INTRODUCTION
Education and the “Alexandrian Library”	1
CHAPTER 1
Bibliographic Nationalism: Marketing America in Horace Mann’s School Library	17
Schools, Authors, and Economics	20
“Respectable” Publishing	28
Bibliographic Nationalism	34
Conclusion: “Grandest Moral Enterprise”	46
CHAPTER 2
“Disorders of the Circulating Medium”: Hawthorne’s Early Children’s Literature	50
“Benumbed Fingers”	53
“Disorders of the Circulating Medium”	55
Grandfather’s Love	63
Loving “Sam” Johnson	70
Conclusion: “Very Capital Reading”	75

CHAPTER 3
“Contact with the World”: Elizabeth Peabody’s West Street Bookshop	79
Engendering Controversy	83
“No Worthless Books”	90
Transcending West Street	97
Conclusion: “Transcendental Exchange”	103
CHAPTER 4
“Conversation of a Better Order”: Margaret Fuller from the Classroom to The Dial	105
Conversations in Providence	107
Boston and the “Animating Influences of Discord”	113
Fuller, Emerson, and The Dial	118
Conclusion: “Old Gentlemanly Pace”	132
CODA
“The Sun is but a Morning Star”	137
Notes	147
Bibliography	181
Index	194