

Contents

---

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix

Introduction
DEBRAH RASCHKE, PHYLLIS STERNBERG PERRAKIS, AND SANDRA SINGER	I

PART ONE

Joining the Centuries: Lessing from the Twentieth to the Twenty-First Century

1 Notes for Proteus: Doris Lessing Reads the Zeitgeist
ROBERTA RUBENSTEIN	II
2 “Anon,” “Free Women,” and the Pleasures of Impersonality
TONYA KROUSE	32
3 House/Mother: Lessing’s Reproduction of Realism in The Sweetest Dream
ROBIN VISEL	58

PART TWO

Engaging the Postmodern Death of History: Redefining Context and Historical Narrative

4 “What Is the Function of the Storyteller?”: The Relationship between Why and How Lessing Writes
ALICE RIDOUT	77
5 London and Kabul: Assessing the Politics of Terrorist Violence
SANDRA SINGER	92

Contents

6	The Porous Border between Fact and Fiction, Empathy and Identification in Doris Lessing's The Cleft PHYLLIS STERNBERG PERRAKIS	113
PART THREE
Destabilized Genre as Social Critique
7	love, again and The Sweetest Dream : Fiction and Interleaved Fictions VIRGINIA TIGER	133
8	Writing in a Minor Key: Doris Lessing's Late-Twentieth-Century Fiction SUSAN WATKINS	149
PART FOUR
Reflections on Early, Midlife, and Later-Life Lessing
9	Domestic Spaces: Huts and Houses in Doris Lessing's African Stories PAT LOUW	165
10	The Challenge of Teaching Doris Lessing's The Golden Notebook in the Twenty-First Century SUZETTE HENKE	183
11	Sex after Sixty: love, again and The Sweetest Dream RUTH O. SAXTON	202
	Bibliography	211
	Notes on Contributors	225
	Index	229