

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments		ix
INTRODUCTION	When Literature and Identity “Get Real”	1
CHAPTER 1	Sites of Authentication: Migration and Subjectivity in The History of Mary Prince	23
CHAPTER 2	“Different with Every Shore”: Women, Workers, and the Transatlantic South in Their Eyes Were Watching God	49
CHAPTER 3	Familiar Ground: The Rhetoric of “Realness” in Mama Day	78
CHAPTER 4	“Recuperating” the Subject in I, Tituba, Black Witch of Salem	111
CONCLUSION	Writing Women across the African Diaspora	137
Notes		145
Works Cited		157
Index		163