ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I wish to thank all those who read and reread this manuscript as it evolved through the successive stages of its own modern mouvance: Gene Vance above all for his dogged queries and uncompromising intellectual rigor; Paul Zumthor, Alexandre Leupin, and Rupert Pickens for their incisive and thorough readings of the text. Invaluable insights were provided over the years by Howard Bloch, Cynthia Brown, Matilda Bruckner, Jacqueline Cerquiglini, Carol Chase, Joe Duggan, Bonnie Krueger, Norris Lacy, Mary-Louise Ollier, Michèle Perret, Nancy Regalado, and Bob Sturges. The comments of these contributors helped make the authorial voice that speaks from the following pages richer through its plurality. As their remarks occasioned numerous rewritings of this text, the editorial expertise of Sima Godfrey, Doug Kohn, and Susie Sutch enabled recasting of another sort.
Special thanks are due to the National Endowment for the Humanities and the University of North Carolina Research Council whose generous support could be rivaled only by that of a bountiful medieval patron.

Extra special thanks are due to Sarah Ryan of Oakland, California, and to Fred Burns whose rare intelligence, humor, and unfaltering support lie between the lines of this book.
