Index

Absalom, Absalom!, 136
See also Rhetorical approach to narrative; Mimetic component

Allegory, and thematizing, 77

Ambassadors, The, 72–73

Anderson, Walter, 219 n. 20

Armies of the Night, The, 23, 189, 190–98, 206

Attributes, 112; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 63, 68, 69, 220 n. 5; and characterized audience, 136; defined, 9–10, 74; in A Farewell to Arms, 178–80; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 98, 104–5; in Great Expectations, 125; in “Haircut,” 17; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 147, 149; in Lord of the Flies, 13; as mimetic components, 11–12; in “My Last Duchess,” 9, 59; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 36–43, 219 n. 23; in Pride and Prejudice, 54, 57, 59–60, 104–5; 115, 125; as thematic components, 12–13

Audience, 21–23, 92, 133, 141–62, 216 n. 15, 222 n. 5; See also Authorial audience; Characterized audience; Flesh-and-blood audience; Narrative audience; Rhetorical approach to narrative.

Austen, Jane. See Emma; Pride and Prejudice

Baker, Carlos, 226 n. 2

Bakhtin, Mikhail, 219 n. 19

Balzac, 4

Barthes, Roland, 3

Battersby, James L., 217 n. 2

“Beast in the Jungle, The,” 21, 60, 62–74, 78–79, 83, 92, 128, 149, 206, 207, 211; beginning of, 63–64, 68; and reading for cultural codes, 71–73; ending of, 67–68, 70–71; synthetic component in, 70–71
Beginnings: The Armies of the Night, 191–92; "The Beast in the Jungle," 63–64; A Farewell to Arms, 170–72; The French Lieutenant's Woman, 84, 85–88; Great Expectations, 119–20; if on a winter's night a traveler, 133–34, 161; Mrs. Dalloway, 202–3; Nineteen Eighty-Four, 28–35; Pride and Prejudice, 50–54. See also Brooks, Peter; Rhetorical approach to narrative

Bell, Millicent, 226 n. 2
Berthold, Michael Coulson, 73
Binary oppositions, 62, 71–73, 76–77
Booth, Wayne, 68–69, 140–41, 220 n. 3, 226 n. 1, 228 n. 3
Brenner, Gerry, 182
Brontë, Charlotte, 139
Brooks, Cleanth, 17
Brooks, Peter, 22, 107–32, 168, 208; analysis of Great Expectations, 116–19; Brooks's analysis assessed, 131–32; psychoanalytic basis of approach, 107, 108–10, 131–32; and reading for the plot, 107; relationship to rhetorical approach to progression, 111–32; and repetition, 108, 110, 112; and single-layered model of text, 115
Browning, Robert. See "My Last Duchess"
Byrd, Max, 223 n. 7
Calder, Jennie, 217 n. 3
Calvino, Italo. See If on a winter's night a traveler
Cantelupe, Eugene B., 173–74
Chabrol, C., 213 n. 6
Character, 2–14, 20–23; as construct (see Synthetic component); as idea, 44, 45, 50, 57, 62–63 (see also Thematic component); as individual, 13, 37–39, 44, 48–49, 57, 62, 78 (see also Mimetic component); and language, 1–2; as linguistic construct, 1; as nonlinguistic, 1; and plausibility, 11–12, 13–14, 54; relationship to progression, 15–23; as representative, 3, 13, 56–57, 78, 86–89, 90, 94, 96, 102, 103; secondary (see Secondary character); as sets of predicates, 3–4; structuralist view of, 3–4; as symbolic, 14. See also Rhetorical approach to progression

Characterized audience: in Absalom, Absalom!, 136; defined, 135–41; in "Haircut," 139; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 135–36, 141–50, 153, 161–62; in Lolita, 139; in Lord Jim, 136–37; in Middlemarch, 139; in Tristram Shandy, 136, 137–39, 140; in Vanity Fair, 138–39. See also Instabilities; Tension

Chatman, Seymour, 213 n. 6
Closure, 110, 111; defined, 17–18; in A Farewell to Arms, 173–74; in The French Lieutenant's Woman, 95, 101, 130; in Great Expectations, 130–31; in "Haircut," 18–19, 161; in Huckleberry Finn, 113; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 158–59, 160–61; in In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76–77; in "My Last Duchess," 19; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 41–42. See also Completeness; Endings; Resolution

Cohen, Philip, 221 n. 2
Completeness, 111; defined, 18; in A Farewell to Arms, 173–74; in The French Lieutenant's Woman, 95, 101, 130; in Great Expectations, 130–31; in "Haircut," 18–19; in Huckleberry Finn, 113; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 158, 161; in In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76–77; in "My Last Duchess," 7, 19; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 41–42. See also Closure; Endings; Resolution

Conrad, Joseph. See Lord Jim
Covert story, 166, 168–70, 178, 208
Crane, R. S., 45, 217 n. 2
Culler, Jonathan, 3–4, 7–8, 20, 215 n. 13, 216 n. 1
de Man, Paul, 215 n. 14
Dessner, Lawrence Jay, 223 n. 10, 224 n. 13
Dickens, Charles. See Great Expectations
Didactic works. See Thematic component; Mimetic-didactic distinction
Dimension, of character: defined, 9; relationship to function, 9–11, 59. See also Character; Mimetic component; Thematic component
Index

Docherty, Thomas, 213 n. 6
Dramatic monologue, 3–9, 15–16, 23
Duckworth, Alistair, 43–48, 59–60
Eliot, George. See Middlemarch
Emma, 187
Emotional response. See Affective response
Endings: The Armies of the Night, 197–98; "The Beast in the Jungle," 67–68; and design of the whole, 108, 111–12; A Farewell to Arms, 173–74; flawed, 112–14; The French Lieutenant's Woman, 84, 95, 99–102, 112, 130; Great Expectations, 130–31; "Haircut," 17, 18–20, 103, 115, 161; Huckleberry Finn, 112–14; If on a winter's night a traveler, 158–59, 161–62; In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76–77; Middlemarch, 198–200; Mrs. Dalloway, 205; "My Last Duchess," 7, 19; Nineteen Eighty-Four, 39–43; Pride and Prejudice, 103. See also Closure; Completeness; Progression, rhetorical theory of; Resolution
"Essay on Criticism, An," 10
Ethics, 165, 182–88
Faulkner, William, 12, 136, 188, 210
Ferber, Edna, 188
Fetterley, Judith, 22, 166–74, 180, 182, 183, 208, 227 n. 8; analysis of A Farewell to Arms, 166–68; assessment of analysis of A Farewell to Arms, 168–70, 174
Fielding, Henry. See Tom Jones
Flesh-and-blood audience, 91; defined, 134; in A Farewell to Arms, 165, 182–87; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 134, 142, 144
Flynn, Elizabeth, 225 n. 6
Forgrounding, 112; of mimetic, 112; of synthetic, 14, 21–22, 32–33, 43, 105; of synthetic in The French Lieutenant's Woman, 22, 83, 91–95, 133, 162; of synthetic in Great Expectations, 122–31; of synthetic in If on a winter's night a traveler, 133–36, 141–62; of synthetic, and relation to thematizing, 3–9
Forster, E. M., 213 n. 6
Fowles, John. See French Lieutenant's Woman, The Freud, Sigmund, 108–9
Function, of character: defined, 9; relationship to dimension, 9–11, 59. See also Mimetic component; Synthetic component; Thematic component
Gelley, Alexander, 213 n. 6
Genette, Gerard, 218 n. 8
Ginsburg, Michal Peled, 223 n. 10, 224 n. 14
Golding, William. See Lord of the Flies
Graff, Gerald, 216 n. 1, 219 n. 21
Great Expectations, 22, 56, 106, 107, 116–31, 133, 162, 166, 190, 196, 198, 206, 210, 211, 213 n. 6; assessment of Brooks's reading of, 118–19,
Index

Great Expectations (continued)
131—32; beginning of, 119-20, 122-24; Brooks’s reading of, 116-18; ending of, 130-31; functions of the Pockets in, 129; functions of Wemmick in, 166, 190, 198; mimetic-synthetic-thematic relationship in, 122-31; rhetorical analysis of, 119-31

Greimas, A. J., 213 n. 6

Gulliver’s Travels, 11

“Haircut,” 13, 15-20, 29, 61, 68, 103, 112, 115, 139, 161; beginning of, 16-17; ending of, 17, 18-20, 161; functions of Whitey in, 15-17, 18-19, 68; instabilities in, 16-18, tension in, 16-20

Hamlet, 2, 173

Harris, Janice H., 220 n. 3
Harvey, Walter J., 213 n. 6
Hawthorne, Nathaniel, 14
Hemingway, Ernest. See Farewell to Arms, A; In Our Time
Higbie, Robert, 213 n. 6
Historicizing, 208-10
Hochman, Baruch, 213 n. 6
Homer, 72-73
Hochman, Baruch, 213 n. 6
Homer, 72-73
Hovey, Irving, 217 n. 3
Huckleberry Finn, 2, 112-14, 141; ending of, 112-14
Hutcheon, Linda, 221 n. 1

Ideal audience. See Authorial audience
Ideal narrative audience, 139-41,
225 n. 10

Ideology, and cultural codes, 23, 61, 71.
See also Evaluation; Resistance
If on a winter’s night a traveler, 22, 23,
133—36, 141-62, 189-90, 206, 208, 211; beginning of, 133—34, 159, 161; ending of, 158-59, 161; functions of the reader in, 133-36, 147-56, 159-62; mimetic component in,
147-48, 155, 159; progression of incipits in, 156-59; relationship of frame to incipits, 150-51, 152, 155-56
In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 61-62,
75-78

Indirect affective relevance. See Principle of indirect affective relevance

Instabilities, 110, 115; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 63-69; defined, 15; in A
Farewell to Arms, 171-74; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 84-85, 87, 88-89, 94, 98-99, 105, 221 n. 1; global, 50—
52 in Great Expectations, 119-24,
126-27, 129; in “Haircut,” 15-20, 115;
in Huckleberry Finn, 114; in If on a winter’s night a traveller, 134, 135, 143,
145, 151-52, 158-59; local, 50-52; in
In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76-77;
in Middlemarch, 201; in Mrs. Dalloway,
202-4; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 28-32,
36, 40, 105; in Pride and Prejudice,
50-54, 105, 111, 115

James, Henry. See “Beast in the Jungle,
The”

Jameson, Frederic, 216 n. 1
Jane Eyre, 139
Jensen, Ejner J., 217 n. 3
Joyce, James, 210

Kampf, Louis, 217 n. 3
Keast, W. R., 45, 217 n. 2
Kelly, Mary Ann, 224 n. 13
Kerner, David, 220 n. 3
King Lear, 49-50
Klopp, Charles, 217 n. 3

Language: relationship to character, 1-2
Lardner, Ring. See “Haircut”

Levin, Richard, 21, 208, 217 n. 2; attack on thematism, 45-50, 59; attack on thematism assessed, 48-50

Light in August, 12
Literary competence, 3, 9
Lodge, David, 1-3, 9
Lolita, 139
Lord Jim, 136-37
Lord of the Flies, 8-9, 13

MacBeth, 173

Mailer, Norman. See Armes of the Night, The

Marx, Karl, 98
Marxism, 210, 216 n. 1; 224 n. 10
Merrill, Robert, 228 n. 2
Metafiction, 23, 132, 133. See also If on a winter’s night a traveler

Middlemarch, 23, 56, 139, 189, 190,
Index

198-202, 203, 206, 210; ending of, 198-200; functions of secondary characters in, 56, 190, 198-202; and principle of indirect affective relevance, 198

Miller, D. A., 216 n. 15
Miller, J. Hillis, 215 n. 14
Miller, Mark Crispin, 29, 217 n. 3

Mimetic component: in The Armies of the Night, 23, 190-98; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 21, 62-63, 68-71, 149, 20 n. 7; defined, 2, 3, 5, 11-13, 215 n. 6; in A Farewell to Arms, 165, 178-79, 181-84; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 83-84, 88-91, 92, 93-94, 96, 97, 98, 100-101, 133, 162, 191; general relationship to thematic and synthetic components, 104-6, 206; in Great Expectations, 107, 119-24, 125, 126-28, 129-30, 133, 162, 198; in Gulliver’s Travels, 11; in “Haircut,” 17; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 133, 146, 147-48, 149-50, 151, 155-57, 158, 159, 162; in Middlemarch, 199-202; in Mrs. Dalloway, 202-5; in “My Last Duchess,” 5-8, 11, 14, 215 n. 12; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 21, 28-43; as placing limits on thematizing, 7-8, 78-79; in Pride and Prejudice, 54-57; within rhetorical approach to progression, 78-79, 115-16, 119, 121, 131-32, 158, 162. See also Affective response; Mimetic-didactic distinction; Mimetic-thematic relationship; Synthetic-mimetic relationship

Mimetic-didactic distinction, 45, 49-50, 57, 217 n. 2

Mimetic-thematic relationship, 21, 22, 28, 62; in The Beast in the Jungle, 21, 60, 62-71, 83; in A Farewell to Arms, 22, 179-82; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 22, 83, 93-99; general conclusions about, 56-57, 104-6, 206-7; in Great Expectations, 119-30, 198; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 149; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 21, 28-43, 57, 83, 218 n. 9; in Pride and Prejudice, 21, 52-60, 69-70, 83

Morgan, Susan, 44-48, 59-60

Movement of narrative. See Progression

Moynahan, Julian, 223 n. 10

Mrs. Dalloway, 2, 23, 189, 190, 202-5, 206, 210

Multiple-plot progression, 23. See also Middlemarch; Mrs. Dalloway

“My Last Duchess,” 3-9, 13, 14, 19, 61, 68, 69, 205, 206; ending of, 7, 19; rhetorical analysis of, 5-8; structuralist analysis of, 4, 7-8

Nabokov, Vladimir, 139

Narratee, 139-41. See also Characterized audience; Narrative audience

Narrative, dynamics of. See Progression; Rhetorical approach to narrative; Story-discourse model

Narrative audience: defined, 5-6, 91; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 92; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 22, 83, 86, 91, 95, 100-104, 221 n. 1; in “Haircut,” 139; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 22, 134-36, 142-47, 149, 150, 153, 156-59, 161-62; in Lolita, 139; in Lord Jim, 136-37; in Middlemarch, 139; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 29, 92; relationship to authorial audience, 29, 83, 104, 141; relationship to characterized audience, 135, 137-39, 141; in Tristram Shandy, 138; in Vanity Fair, 138-39

Nelles, William, 222 n. 4

Neo-Aristotelean criticism, 21, 27, 43, 45, 48, 57, 59. See also Levin, Richard

New Criticism, 131

New Readings vs. Old Plays. See Levin, Richard

Nonfictional protagonist. See Armies of the Night, The Nonfiction narrative. See Armies of the Night, The

Olson, Elder, 217 n. 2

Oppositions. See Binary oppositions

Orr, Marilyn, 266 n. 15

Orwell, George. See Nineteen Eighty-Four

Othello, 173
Overstanding, 165. See also Evaluation; Resistance
Overt story. See Fetterley, Judith
Palmer, William, 222 n. 8
Pamela, 12
Paris, Bernard J. 213 n. 6
Phelan, James, 215 n. 13, 215 n. 14, 222 n. 2, 223 n. 3, 228 n. 6
Pilgrim's Progress, 14
Piwowarczyk, Mary Ann, 225 n. 8
Plausibility. See Character, and plausibility
Plot, 107, 108–16, 120. See also Brooks, Peter; Progression
Point of view. See Vision; Voice
Pope, Alexander, 10
Price, Martin, 213 n. 6
Prince, Gerald, 139–41
Principle of indirect affective relevance, 56, 115, 128, 190, 198, 202, 211. See also Secondary characters
Privileging of components. See Foregrounding
Progression, rhetorical theory of, 15–23, 77, 107, 216 n. 15; in The Armies of the Night, 190–98; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 63–71; compared with Brooks's psychoanalytic approach to plot, 106, 107, 110–21, 131–32; defined, 9, 15; in A Farewell to Arms, 165–88; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 83–104; functions of secondary characters in, 56, 115, 125–31, 190, 198, 211; general principles of, 104–5; in Great Expectations, 119–31; in “Haircut,” 13–20; in Huckleberry Finn, 112–14; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 133–36, 141–62; in Middlemarch, 198–202; and a mimetic-thematic relationship, 13, 105, 128; in Mrs. Dalloway, 202–5; in “My Last Duchess,” 3–9; of narratives with central thematic point, 206; of narratives as representations of actions, 206; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 28–43; in Pride and Prejudice, 43–60, 114, 152; and relationship to character, 15–23. See also Brooks, Peter; Dimensions; Functions; Instabilities; Rhetorical approach to progression. Scholes, Robert; tension
Psychoanalytic approach to plot. See Brooks, Peter
Rabinowitz, Peter, 5, 91, 139–41, 214 n. 11
Rader, Ralph, 5–8, 20, 181, 200, 219 n. 21
Rankin, Elizabeth D., 221 n. 2, 222 n. 8
Ray, William, 225 n. 8
Reilly, Patrick, 217 n. 3
Resistance, 18–19, 20–21, 22, 48, 165, 169, 170, 187. See also Evaluation; Farewell to Arms, A; Fetterley, Judith Resisting Reader, The. See Fetterley, Judith
Resolution: in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 63, 66–68, 70; and flawed endings, 112–14; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 91, 99, 101; in Great Expectations, 120, 121; in “Haircut,” 115; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 134, 158–59; in Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76–77; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 35–36, 40, 43; in Pride and Prejudice, 53, 111; and rhetorical approach to narrative, 10–15. See also Completeness; Closure; Endings; Instabilities; Tension
Reynolds, Michael, 226 n. 2
Rhetorical approach to narrative: and attention to temporal dynamics, 77, 107, 120; and audience, 140–41, 223 n. 10; claims for comprehensiveness, 189, 205, 207–11; claims for flexibility, 23, 105, 189–90, 206–7; compared with deconstructive approach, 215 n. 14; compared with Brooks’s psychoanalytic approach, 22, 111–16, 131–32; compared with Scholes’s semimetic approach, 73, 74–79; compared with structuralist approach, 7–8; and double-layered model of text, 115; and historicizing, 208–11; influence of character on, 10–11, 20; mimetic component in, 8, 9–10, 115, 131, 143, 219 n. 19; model of audience in, 140–41; predictive power of, 23, 189, 205–6, 207; and resistance, 174–88; as viewing the whole, 169. See also Audience; Brooks, Peter; Character; Fetterley, Judith; Levin, Richard; Progression; Scholes, Robert

Swift, Jonathan, 11

Synthetic component, 20, 21, 105; in The Armies of the Night, 190–91, 195; in “The Beast in the Jungle,” 70–71, 77; defined, 2, 13–14; in A Farewell to Arms, 165–66, 174–78, 180–82, 183–84, 185, 187; in The French Lieutenant’s Woman, 83, 91–96, 101–4, 162; in Great Expectations, 107, 119, 121–22, 125–31, 162; in “Haircut,” 4, 216 n. 18; in If on a winter’s night a traveler, 22, 132, 133–62; in Mrs. Dalloway, 205; in “My Last Duchess,” 5–6, 14, 215 n. 12; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 32–33; in Pride and Prejudice, 14, 70; and Robert Scholes, 77. See also Foregrounding; Audience

Synthetic-mimetic relationship, 21, 149–50, 190

Synthetic-thematic relationship, 21, 103

Tate, Allen, 220 n. 3

Temporal dynamics. See Progression

Tennyson, Alfred Lord, 72

Textual Power. See Scholes, Robert

Thackeray, William Makepeace. See Vanity Fair

Index

Thematic component (continued)

"Haircut," 13, 17, 18, 19–20; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 149–50, 162; in Lord of the Flies, 9, 13; in Middlemarch, 198–202; in Mrs. Dalloway, 203, 205; in "My Last Duchess," 5, 8–9, 13, 14, 61, 69; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 32–35, 36, 37, 39, 41–43, 61, 68, 104, 219 n. 23; in Pride and Prejudice, 50, 52–53, 54–60, 61, 69, 104–5, 114, 115, 125, 128, 198; in Vanity Fair, 139

Thematizing: assumptions behind, 27; and didactic works, 45; and interpretation through cultural codes, 21, 61–62, 71–79; neo-Aristotelian attack on, 21, 27–28, 45–50, 59, 217 n. 2; relationship to mimetic component/affective response, 21, 61–62, 73–79, 83, 104–5; traditional examples of, 43–48, 59–60; as widespread practice, 27, 61, 216 n. 1; within rhetorical approach to narrative, 7–8, 13–14, 61, 62, 73–79, 104–5, 205–10. See also Levin, Richard; Scholes, Robert

Todorov, 3–4

Tom Jones, 12, 74, 210

Tompkins, Jane P., 220 n. 3

Torgovnick, Marianna, 216 n. 15

Tragedy, 173

Traits. See Attributes, as mimetic component

Tristram Shandy, 136, 137–39, 140, 208

Turn of the Screw, The, 4

Twain, Mark. See Huckleberry Finn

"Ulysses," 72

Universality, 49–50. See also Levin, Richard; thematizing

Vanity Fair, 74, 138–39, 210

Vision, 218 n. 8; in The Armies of the Night, 196; in "The Beast in the Jungle," 65; in A Farewell to Arms, 181; in The French Lieutenant's Woman, 89, 97, 99; in Great Expectations, 123, 196; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 32, 35, 37, 42

Voice, 218 n. 8; in The Armies of the Night, 196; in A Farewell to Arms, 170–72, 179, 185; in The French Lieutenant's Woman, 89, 93; in Great Expectations, 122, 123, 128, 196; in If on a winter's night a traveler, 134, 135, 145, 156–57; in In Our Time, Interchapter VII, 76; in Nineteen Eighty-Four, 42; in Pride and Prejudice, 51–52, 128

Warhol, Robyn, 225 n. 8

Warren, Robert Penn, 17

Weinsheimer, Joel, 213 n. 4

Wexler, Joyce, 226 n. 2

Wilson, Edmund, 226 n. 2

Wilson, Rawdon, 213 n. 6

Wolfe, Peter, 222 n. 8

Woolf, Virginia. See Mrs. Dalloway

Young, Philip, 226 n. 2

Zwerdling, Alex, 217 n. 3