Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: On Sensation, Knowledge, and Cultural Perception 1

Sensation and the Philosophy of Mind
Disjoining the Cultural Episteme

One Coleridge and the Subversion of Archetypes 13

Two Thomas De Quincey’s Defect of the Eye 26
Department from the Wordsworthian Landscape
The Subversion of Archetypes
Mechanical Models of Mind

Three Poe and the French Symbolists: Disjoining the Cultural Episteme 45
Baudelaire and the Theory of Correspondances
Poe and the Disjoining of Cultural Value
Rimbaud’s Dérèglement de Tous les Sens

Four The Nocturnal Visions of Joyce and Barnes 65
Joyce, Epiphany, and the Association of Sensibility
Barnes’s Nightwood and the “Evacuation” of Custom

Five Joseph Conrad and the Shadow-Line of Disorientation 85
Sensation, Knowledge, Image
The Disorienting Voyage

Six Malcolm Lowry’s Manichean Episteme: The Paradise of Despair 115
The Linguistic Basis of Lowry’s Episteme
The Imagery of Disorientation: Vertiginous and Entropic Extremes
Under the Volcano: The Structure of Disorientation

Conclusion: Eccentricity and the Horizon of Expectations 140

Notes 147

Works Cited 155

Index 165